By Bryan K. Wells : The Archaeology and Epigraphy of Indus Writing the trend of all knowledge at the present is to specialize but archaeology has in it all the qualities that call for the wide view of the human race of its growth writing is the physical manifestation of a spoken language it is thought that human beings developed language c 35000 bce as evidenced by cave paintings The Archaeology and Epigraphy of Indus Writing:

The Archaeology and Epigraphy of Indus Writing is a detailed examination of the Indus script. It presents new analysis based on an expansive text corpus using revolutionary analytical techniques developed specifically for the purpose of deciphering the Indus script. This exploration of Indus writing examines the structure of Indus text at a level of detail that has never been possible before. This advance in analytic techniques is combined with detailed linguistic information. About the Author: Bryan K Wells is an archaeologist, epigrapher, and geographer. He has excavated on the east and west coasts of North America and in Pakistan. Wells has studied ancient writing systems including the Indus script since 1990 and holds a PhD in
